Sir:

Applicants respectfully submit that the Examiner has engaged in impermissible hindsight in utilizing Johnson to reject the claimed invention as obvious. In particular, Johnson cites at least 350 active agents (from column 6, line 10, to column 7, line 45). Among them, antihistamines are cited as active agents (column 6, lines 41-51), and 27 antihistamines are cited in particular. Johnson fails to describe any examples relating to cetirizine or present experimental data relating to cetirizine. Thus, a person skilled in the art would have no reason to choose cetirizine among the 350 active agents described. Therefore, Johnson is not an applicable reference because it fails to teach or suggest to a person of skill in the art, without use of hindsight, the claimed invention.

Respectfully submitted,

Domenico FANARA et al.
